
Cheap land in UK wanted for eco-town development

Posted by Nanos - 2008/02/07 12:43

Perhaps hill/mountain side, looking for between 4 to several thousand acres (Ideally buy 4+ acres now, with option to buy a few thousand later on when funds permit.), looking towards prices below £100 an acre. (I've seen land in Scotland sell for £60 an acre.)

Looking to build earth sheltered waterproof concrete dome homes to offer at below market rentals. (No properties to be sold, all rental.)

Starting with a single self build unit to prove the design and live in for my girlfriend and I.

Seeking off grid location, with aim to provide all services internally, ideally with a view to solar and geothermal exploitation.

And a long term view to building a 10,000 home eco-town with sustainable local industry.

Any pointers/etc. welcomed.

=====

Re: Cheap land in UK wanted for eco-town developmen

Posted by SelimG - 2008/02/08 01:54

Hi Nanos,

10,000 homes. That's a big project. More power to you. Right now, I'm just working on one, but I am looking to go in on some land with people. I'm trying to meet and network with as many people as possible. I'm in London right now, but leaning towards Bristol. I'd love to meet up at some point though to throw some ideas around. Also, I'm trying to arrange a meeting to go to Bristol after the 15th to meet with some of the people from the site. If it works out, I'd be happy to offer you a lift.

Selim

=====